SUCCESS in EDUCATION

To whom it may concern,

The Success in Education Foundation is thrilled to partner with Comcast to increase students' capabilities of learning from home. Our goal is to utilize the Internet Essentials program so students can continue learning at home and access important resources in these challenging times we find ourselves in.

Internet Essentials is Comcast's signature community impact initiative designed to create digital equity by offering internet service at home for $9.95/month + tax, subsidized computers, and free digital skills training in person, online, and in print. New customers who sign up before June 30, 2021, will receive 60 days of complimentary service. Since 2011, Comcast has connected millions of low-income households across the country to low-cost, high-speed Internet, and has invested $650 million in digital skills training reaching 9.5 million people.

The program functions through a network of thousands of community-based organizations, libraries, schools, and nonprofit partners across the country to raise awareness of the importance of Internet for schoolwork and employment, as well as skills training to prepare people for the digital economy.

The Success in Education Foundation and the Code to Success program are not requiring families to adopt Internet Essentials, but simply want communities to know this is an available opportunity for those in need.
